County Judge George Stanley walked into his office the other morning spruced up in a new top coat and fuzzy new hat, Sheriff Ralph Hall walked into his office in a snazzy suit, white shirt and tie, someone called for an investigation and Eddie Gerber ducked out of sight . and all in a day's work.

The Otoe county courthouse is a regular beat for News-Press reporters It's a good job and it's always interesting

Like the time someone sneaked into the courthouse one night and decorated the halls and doors in green for St. Patrick's day. Nellie Conley in the welfare office is still called the culprit If a fella really wanted a morning snort, he could find a supply most any time in Sheriff Hall's office Whiskey, beer or wine, take your pick but be careful, if the sheriff is around You might pull back a stub because the booze is confiscated.

Roy Ojers, who has served many years as county bailiff, always places his cigars above the door sill over District Court Clerk Virginia Naviaux's office . Judge Stanley often puts his cigars in the pop cooler "to keep them moist"

Recorder Frances Webb Farson and her Deputy Julia Weatherhead drink hot tea and not coffee like most of the other officers and employes Assessor L A Whipple smokes his tobacco in $25 pipes (he sez).

Treasurer Orrel Williams' office is run strictly by gals About the only time a man is behind the counter is when Clerk Ed Harshbarger or Assessor Whipple are coordinating county business or when the state auditors arrive Miss Naviaux always has cigarets and matches on hand for a few of us moochers although she never uses them herself

-:- -:- -:-

Courthouse folks like to please you and you will always find courteous people in the offices who greet you with a smile, the day's greeting and an offer to serve Try smiling back and adding a similar "good morning

Thurber humor is compared to Twain

NEW YORK (UPI) — In death, the boy who roamed the streets of Columbus, Ohio, as Jamie Thurber will return to that Midwestern wellspring of his humor—his talent now compared with that of Mark Twain

James Thurber died late Thursday at 66 The author-humorist-cartoonist-playwright had entered Doctors Hospital a month ago for surgery for a blood clot on the brain Pneumonia set in this week

Compared To Twain

In its obituary today, the New York Herald Tribune called Thurber "perhaps the greatest humorist this country has known since Mark Twain, but, like Twain, he was far more "

James Grover Thurber wrote some 25 books and did thousands of comic cartoons, he did essays, sketches, New Yorker "casuals," a full-length biography of New Yorker founder Harold Ross, he co-authorized the play "The Male Animal" with his former Ohio State University schoolmate Elliott Nugent, he acted in the recent musical "A Thurber Carnival," made from his writings

And yet, for the last two decades he had been, for all practical purposes, blind When he was 6, he lost his left eye in an accident. When he was 40, a cataract began developing in the other eye Surgery failed to help, gradually he lost his sight.

Alfred H. Miller

Protection Plans will be offered

The American Republic Insurance Company Plans of Protection are to be made available to county residents This news was brought by Alfred H Miller, Nebraska manager of the company.

According to an announcement appearing on another page of this issue of the paper, these famous Protection Plans will be available to all county residents who qualify Mr Miller has stated that a drive will be conducted in the county to contact all city and rural residents so that a full explanation of the Plans may be provided

The American Republic Protection Plans provide help against the expenses of hospital, doctor and surgeons' bills as well as financial help when sickness or accident strikes They are written by the Company which has a record of thirty-two years' service to American individuals and families.

As hospital and medical costs have risen, the need for insurance protection against these expenses has become more apparent Over 100 000 000 persons in the United States now have hospitalization protection and slightly more than half that amount have medical care protection

Mr Miller has advised that many thousands of Nebraska residents are now protected by American Republic Insurance Company Plans Because these Plans can be fitted to nearly every individual's and family's needs it is important that every county resident have the opportunity to have a full explanation of the Plans," Mr Miller said.

On the basis of other communities' participation in the American Republic drives, it is expected that the local participation will be quite heavy, according to Company officials
