Indian religion is more than 'savage'

Religion In America
By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

White latecomers to the Western Hemisphere, since the time of Columbus, have tended to look down on Indians as a primitive people with a primitive concept of God.

This hoary libel would not have endured if white men had made a real study of Indian religion.

But they were so busy preaching to the "savages" whose continent they were raping that they rarely stopped to wonder whether Red men might have something worthwhile to say to them in return.

Talks Instead of Listening

How much the white man have missed by talking instead of listening is indicated by a book which was first published way back in 1932 but only recently came to my attention.

Published by the University of Nebraska Press under the title, "Black Elk Speaks," it is a compendium of spiritual and secular wisdom from the lips of Ben Black Elk, a Sioux Indian philosopher who lives on the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota.

It contains a prayer which Black Elk likes to say at night, while standing on a high hill and facing West. In this prayer, God is addressed as "grandfather" because that is the term of greatest respect known to the Sioux Indians.

Here is Black Elk's prayer, reproduced by permission:

"Grandfather, great mysterious one, you have been always, and before you nothing has been.

"There is nothing to pray to but you.

"The star nations all over the universe are yours, and yours are the grasses of the earth.

"Day in, day out, you are the life of things—

"You are older than all need, older than all pain and prayer.

"Grandfather, all over the world the faces of living ones are alike. In tenderness they have come up out of the ground.

"Look upon your children with children in their arms, that they may face the winds and walk the good road to the day of quiet.

"Teach me to walk the soft earth, a relative to all that live.

"Sweeten my heart, and fill me with light.

"Give me strength to understand and the eyes to see.

"Help me, for without you, I am nothing."

If Black Elk's concept of God is primitive, we should all be so primitive.

NLRB suggests ousting suit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) Sunday recommended a complaint filed by Iowa Beef Packers, Inc., against a union striking at Iowa Beef's Dakota City, Neb., plant be dismissed.

NLRB Examiner Jerry B. Stone held hearings in South Sioux City, Neb., on Oct. 15-16, 1969.

The case involved a "reserve" gate established by the company for employes of subcontractors whose work allegedly was not directly involved with the operation of the plant. The company filed the complaint after pickets appeared at not only the regular gates but the gate designated as a "reserve" gate.

The subcontractors were engaged in building a new addition to the Dakota City plant.

Iowa Beef alleged the picketers of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters & Butcher Workmen of North America violated the National Labor Relations Act in picketing the special gate.

In his recommendation to the NLRB, the examiner said the company did not sufficiently establish that the work done by the subcontractors was unrelated to the normal operations of the Dakota City plant.

The buck Ends here . . . .

By Ivan D.E. Beaumont

Gunther Schwartz, Lincoln, is a determined man.

And that determination paid off when he made a "find" along a county road in Oklahoma.

Mr Schwartz found a 21-pound "star."

The fireball was seen January 3 in the Midwest, according to Mr Schwartz, a representative of the Smithsonian Institute. A NASA - financed photo tracking system was put into action and the crash location was calculated from the pictures.

The result is that Mr Schwartz drove down a snow-packed county road in Oklahoma and saw a black rock. It was the "falling star" and the impact was within a half mile from the calculated point.

Mr Schwartz stopped in the News-Press last summer during a search for a meteorite reported seen in this area. No report was ever received that it had been found. (Mebbe we better check with Bill Tempelmeyer and his telescope.)

The Smithsonian representative said that 99 per cent of the stars burn out in the Earth's protective atmosphere.

But — if you find one; Lock it up. Mr Schwartz said they are quite valuable.

The Spurrlows music program the other night had a fired up first half and a different approach after the intermission and record - book - stereo tape selling program.

But we enjoyed it.

There were a few of us who were tiring with sitteritis while the young fireballs sang, danced around and ran up and down the aisles singing and playing instruments.

. . . . They have a man upstairs who provides them with a special kind of pep pill and prayerfully, it is habit forming for the young.

Earl Romjue has retired as a federal inspector at Morton House Kitchens, Inc., but he's not an idle man.

He's taken another food inspection job, this time with the state department and often travels to different towns.

Earl played a few summers on our team in the Twilight golf league and while we didn't burn up the course, we did enjoy the game.

Our team never won the league, but we came within a few strokes the last game of the season and that was satisfying.

There's something to be said for the losers . . . . they get to hit the ball more.

Earl should plan his work and state travels to include Beatrice . . . . when the Seniors golf tournament is going on . . . . or Lincoln and Norfolk when those tournaments get under way.

Truth goals are in sight

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The consumer movement has set its sights on a pair of new "truth" goals—more information on price tags and in lists of ingredients.

Witnesses before a Senate commerce consumer subcommittee Friday urged Congress to require "unit pricing," the statement of a product's cost per pound or ounce, and quality labeling, the statement of a product's nutritional value or quality grade, to bolster the 1966 truth in packaging law.

The hearing was held at the closing session of the Consumer Federation of America's 1970 assembly. In addition to recommending unit pricing requirements as a further way to achieve "justice in the marketplace," witnesses agreed with Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., who presided, that it would help stem Inflation.

Mrs. Helen Nelson, a federation vice president and Illinois consumer movement leader, told of surveys taken by both the national group and the New York City Consumer Protection Agency. The surveys showed that women instructed to buy items on a cost basis alone more than half the time because of difficulty in translating prices.
